Acknowledgements

Many Family and Consumer Sciences educators from across New York State contributed to the development of the original Adolescent Psychology curriculum guide. Since then, many efforts have been made to maintain the integrity of the curriculum guide while updating the accompanying learning experiences. This revision brings Adolescent Psychology into alignment with all educational requirements and recommendations at the state and national levels. A special thank you goes to the writing team for their vision in updating this document, as we acknowledge the time, talents, and expertise of all who contributed to the development of this course.

Foreword

This publication provides guidance to those responsible for planning, implementing, and assessing the commencement level Family and Consumer Sciences Adolescent Psychology course. Family and Consumer Sciences courses are designed to help students become competent, confident, and caring in managing their work, family and community lives. Adolescent Psychology is a cluster level course in the Human Services and Family Studies content area. All Family and Consumer Sciences courses allow students to apply the process skills of communication, leadership, management, and thinking in an experiential setting. Commencement level Family and Consumer Sciences courses offer minimal duplication among courses and integration of content in an applied context.

Family and Consumer Sciences Core Courses:

- Lifespan Studies
- Food and Nutrition
- Clothing and Textiles
- Housing and Environment

Human Services and Family Studies cluster courses:

- Careers in Human Services
- Child Development and Psychology
- Early Childhood Education Program
- Adolescent Psychology
- Parenting
- Family Dynamics
- Gerontology

Message to the Teacher

Throughout history the period of adolescence, the transition between childhood and adulthood has intrigued scientists and educators alike. Over time, its study has seen dramatic change as contemporary views were

Curriculum Overview ² Adolescent Psychology

1. What is the prerequisite?

The Lifespan Studies Core course is a suggested prerequisite for all cluster-level courses in Human Services and Family Studies. Adolescent Psychology was designed as a 20-week course. If Adolescent Psychology is offered without initial completion of the Lifespan Studies Core course, content topics may be adjusted to include fundamental performance objectives and supporting competencies from the Lifespan Studies course.

2. Who can teach the Adolescent Psychology course?

All Family and Consumer Sciences courses must be taught by certified Family and Consumer Sciences teachers. Certified Family and Consumer Sciences educators may also teach the Careers and Financial Management course required for Career and Technical Education majors. That ½ unit course can be combined with one of the four core Family and Consumer Sciences courses for a full credit in CTE.

3. How is the Adolescent Psychology course organized?

The Adolescent Psychology course is divided into 5 content topics:

- Introduction to Adolescent Psychology (I)
- Fundamental Transitions of Adolescence (FT)
- Essential Tasks of Adolescence (ET)
- The Adolescent in Society (AS)
- Contemporary issues in Adolescence (CI)

Each content topic is introduced with an Essential Question which will allow the students to focus on the process skillfEr>BDC q0.00000912 0 612 792 reW*nBT/F2 12 Tf1 0 0 1 54 341.09Tf1 0 v60.-4(ll)-3(fE92412 0 6s)-

Standards delivered in the academic disciplines of Math, Science, Technology, English Language Arts, Social Studies, Languages Other Than English and the Arts are supported by the Adolescent Psychology course as it provides real-world opportunities to apply the key ideas and skills taught in those disciplines.

The Adolescent Psychology course may also be used to fulfill the New York State parenting mandate. Adolescent Psychology content topics align with the National Standards for Family and Consumer Sciences; this curriculum guide incorporates The National Standards for Teaching High School Psychology.

5. Why is it important for students to enroll in Adolescent Psychology?

All students are members of current and future families. Understanding the dynamics of relationships is a key to a successful future in home, school, community, and workplace settings. Employers stress the importance of employees demonstrating personal and interpersonal skills in the workplace.

9. How does Adolescent Psychology support positive youth development?

Family, Career and Community Leaders of America (FCCLA) is an integral part of Family and Consumer Sciences education and an essential element in a complete Family and Consumer Sciences program. FCCLA is chartered by New York State, and is an ideal vehicle for realizing positive youth development. FCCLA is the only student organization of its kind focusing on family issues. FCCLA in secondary education Family and Consumer Sciences programs can be organized as a co-curricular and/or extra-curricular activity. The wide range of diverse activities, projects, programs, leadership opportunities and service learning experienced through FCCLA complement and augment the content topics of the Family and Consumer Sciences curricula.

PROCESS SKILLS

The information below is excerpted

A. Communication Skills (C) How can I develop effective communication skills to express thoughts, feelings, opinions, and information to enhance family, school, work, and community relationships?

Standards Connections

Communications Skills support the NYS Family and Consumer Sciences Learning Standard 2 ± A Safe and Healthy Environment and NYS Career Development and Occupational Studies Learning Standards 1 ± Career Development, 2 ± Integrated Learning, and 3a ± Universal Foundation Skills.

Rationale

Communication is the transmission or interchange of thoughts, feelings, opinions, and information between a sender and a receiver. Communication process skills are first experienced and learned within the social environment of the family. The process of learning to be an effective communicator begins in infancy, with babies and care givers engaging in interactive behaviors. As communication learning continues, families, schools, and communities play critical roles in expanding

Communication process skills include listening, speaking, reading, and writing. Together they build a sense of cohesiveness within family, school, work, and community settings. They are a powerful cultural tool, a means for creating a sense of group identity through exchange of values, expectations, and ways of thinking and perceiving. Conflict management is facilitated when individuals are able to express
